Answer: Bày tỏ ý kiến

In my opinion/ I think people shouldn't/ don't need to pay when visiting the museum./ museum should be free to everyone.
museums should charge a small fee for admission (vé vào c? a)

Clarify: Giải thích ý

The main reason is that...

- Museum is for education. IF the ticket is free, more people have a chance => learn/ understand the local culture and history.
=> promotes (thúc d?y) education within the community.
- However,...
- cost for maintenance is high.
- pay staff and protect the exhibits.
- government funding isn't enough => ticket sales help maintain the operations

Do you think people should pay to visit museums, or should they be free?

Personally, I strongly believe that museums should be free for everyone.

The main reason is that museums are places of education, so money shouldn't stop people from learning about history or art.

Another reason is that if they are free, more people can visit and learn more about history and understand their past which is great for the community.

(That's why I believe free access to museums for everyone).

Do you think people should pay to visit museums, or should they be free?

It seems to me that charging a small admission fee is actually necessary.

The main reason is that the cost of preservation and maintenance is incredibly high.

One possible explanation could be that government funding alone isn't enough to cover these expenses, so ticket sales help keep the facilities in good condition. Also, without the income, museums might have to close certain exhibits or reduce their opening hours.

(So, paying a small fee ensures we can enjoy them for years)
